MY FATHER, JEROME MOROSS

Susanna Moross Tarjan

Susanna is the daughter of the Jewish Composer Jerome Moross. Jerome Moross's career encompasses three spheres, Broadway, Hollywood, and the concert hall. Some audiences best know him as the composer of the Academy Award-nominated score for William Wyler's epic western, The Big Country (1958). An innovative score that challenged the status quo, it has influenced Western film scores ever since. Moross also influenced the theatrical world with his unique approach to musical theater, including The Golden Apple (1954) and his interpretation of American urban mythology in Frankie and Johnny (1938), a work that combined American music and vernacular dance.
