"A very brief introduction to the history of photography for the family historian"

Presented by John Christensen,

Member of the Genealogical Society of Greater Miami

Discussion about the various kinds of photographs that a family historian may find in your family paper and archive. How to identify, date and preserve your family photos

John Christensen will share the history of photography, and its development from the first daguerreotype in 1839 in France to the tintype and ambrotype to the modern iPhone, and its usage. He will give you a synopsis on how to care for your photographs, label and store them for your family's future.

Participants are encouraged to bring their own old photographs to identify the time frame in which the photo was taken.
