A slice of Jewish Heritage –three generation of Dutch/Jewish family living at the East End of London,

Presented by - Ruth Badley

Ruth Badley graduated from the Central School of Speech and Drama in 1978 with an impressive career as an educator, a journalist and author.

She currently runs her own public relations and freelance writing consultancy, providing results-driven public relations and marketing services for businesses and corporations in the geospatial industry.

Her blogs encompass food, travel, literature, visual and performing arts, live music and Bruce Springsteen. Ruth sits on the judging panel of the UK's Quality Food Awards and the Great Taste Awards.

Ruth wrote and directed Just Playing for Dubai's Short and Sweet Theatre Festival in 2016. Where are the Grown-ups? is her first novel. She has two adult sons and lives in rural Essex with her husband, Tim.

Ruth's presentation will focus on her own genealogical research discovering long-withheld family secrets about her grandmother that sent her searching for the truth in London's old Jewish East End.
